How to Get More Hours in Your Day – A Managed IT Service used with permission from the Cisco Small Business Resource Center

How many staff hours would your business reclaim by outsourcing network maintenance and support?

A managed service provider (MSP) can handle it for you around the clock-- remotely monitoring your network, proactively averting problems, updating and patching systems, and responding to tech support calls. And it would probably save you money too.

Re-Allocating Management Time

Have you calculated how much management time (and salary) is being eaten up by IT problems?

14 Tips to Protect Your Business from Ransomware Attacks

used with permission from SBA.gov
by Natale Goriel

Ransomware attacks are the fastest growing malware threats. On average, more than 4,000 ransomware attacks have occurred daily since January 1, 2016. Ransomware, a type of malicious software that infects and restricts access to a computer until a ransom is paid, affects businesses of all sizes. The good news is that there are best practices you can adopt to protect your business.

The Personal Impact of Cybercrime

used with permission from Norton by Symantec by Christina Schubert

Fifty-one percent of people think that over the past five years it's become harder to stay safe and secure online than in the real world. Yet, 689 million people in 21 countries experienced cybercrime within the last year alone. The reason for this staggering number is simple. Most people don't take the right precautions to protect their digital lives.

Hurricanes, Water, Earthquakes, and Flares: How the Cloud Protects Your Data used with permission from Microsoft For Your Business

When faced with hurricanes, earthquakes, geomagnetic storms, and floods, company data is safer in the cloud than anywhere else.

Traditional data centers are built strong to protect against natural disasters, but when it comes time for your data to evacuate, it needs to have somewhere to go. The cloud offers that protection with multiple levels of redundancy across the world, so your data will survive even if one location is hit or damaged. Here are four scenarios the cloud protects you from:
